VETERANS OR FOREIGN WARS POST 2791 TINLEY PARK WELCOME RETURNING SERVICE MEN

On December 29th the quietude of the small building that houses memories of the men of World War I was interrupted by a ceremony that formally introduced recently returned Veterans of World War II as new members into the Bremen Post Veterans of Foreign Wars 2791. Eleven men gathered from remote parts of the world and brought back to their wonderful country and loved ones, were banded together to be part of a colorful ceremony that was a credit to the older officers and members.

These new members were sworn into the organization in a most memorable manner. With hands upon shoulders a large human V was formed, symbolizing the unity attained from working together to the Victory's end. Commander Raymond M. Mason gave the obligations and presented the Cross of Malta to each recruit with much pride and happiness for among these men were two of his sons, Donald and Richard Mason, who had returned home simultaneously from Europe and Asia. It is a very rare privilege for a father to be honored with the role of Commander to be able to embrace his sons into an organization whose qualifications demand service in the armed forces in foreign lands.

The new members were: Ralph D. Cook, Frank S. Davis, Gilbert A. Hires, Edward W. Lehmann, Karl C. Lehmann, Donald R. Mason, Richard L. Mason, Clifford E. O'Brien, Charles E. Rich, Roy E. Smith and Fred Willman. The country, community and organization salute these men for a job well done.

Upon completion of enrollment a party was presented to honor these new members by the Women's Auxiliary. A turkey dinner completed by two large decorative cakes were served. Friends and families of the men of the post brought the attendance to about 250. After the formalities of introductions, everybody became acquainted by the gathering of discussion groups and by that worldly art of dancing. From an overheard conversation of one of the rehabilitated civilians. He stated that, "The stamina of the civilians was too much for him." After the rigors of a soldier's life he thought he was prepared to meet his new world, but he had not anticipated dancing, which has some of the ear marks of an obstacle course.

Mokena Boy Cited For Heroism In Fire In Japan

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stermer have received notice that their son Sgt. C. Lester Stermer has been recommended for a Soldiers Award Medal by Major Glenn H. Hodges, Commanding General Eighth Army and by Major Daniel A. Curnan, CAC, Fire Marshall, Yokosuka Military Government group according to the following:

Certificate

"I certify that Cpl. C. Lester Stermer, 109th Hq. & Hq. Detachment Military Gov. Group, rendered outstanding services under extremely hazardous conditions in the fighting of the fire at the Submarine Training School at Yokosuka Naval Base in Japan on 3 Dec. 1945 at about 0530.

"Upon arrival at the scene of the fire the undersigned was met by the Cpl. of the Guard, Cpl. C. Lester Stermer, who entered the burning building and assisted in retarding the fire under intense heat and falling portions of the burning building.

"The cave in the vicinity of the burning building presented a potential hazard. When I called for men to cover up boxes marked, 'Ammo-Detonators' exposed in the cave, at the mouth of the ammunition storage cave located approximately 15 feet from the burning building, Cpl. Stermer assisted by placing corrugated iron over the same boxes, thereby preventing a possible explosion and loss of life and destruction of U. S. property. During the performance of his duty in this incident, Cpl. Stermer constantly was under threat of his own life."

—Signed: Daniel A. Curnan, Major CAC, Fire Marshall.

Cpl. Stermer has since been promoted to Sergeant.

JANUARY 15 TAX QUIZ

Nigel D. Campbell, Collector of Internal Revenue, Chicago.

1. What Federal tax form must be filed by January 15th? Your 1945 Declaration of Estimated Tax (or an amendment of your 1945 Declaration.)

2. Does everyone have to file a Declaration? No. This filing should not be confused with the regular time for filing annual income tax returns, which must be filed not later than March 15th.

3. Who does have to file January 15? Three groups as follows: a. farmers; b. persons who filed a 1945 Declaration of Estimated Tax, but wish to change their estimates; c. persons who should have filed a 1945 Declaration but have failed to do so.

4. Did everybody have to file a 1945 Declaration? No, only persons whose wages last year exceeded $5,000 plus $500 for every exemption except their own and persons who had over $100 income outside of wages from which tax was withheld (assuming their overall income was at least $500).

5. What are some examples? A wageearner with a wife and one child has two exemptions besides his own, and if his wages exceeded $6,000 ($5,000 plus $500 plus $500), he had to file a 1945 Declaration. Also required to file were merchants, landlords, lawyers, doctors, and others who received income from which tax was not withheld.

6. Why is January 15 a special date for farmers? Other taxpayers were required to file declarations last March but the law specifically permitted farmers to wait until the next Jan. 15.

Now Is The Time

The time has come for farm people to cooperate and learn what is involved in a School Survey soon to be made in Cook County. Speaking of the School Survey Law, President Earl Smith stated in his farewell to the Farm Bureau: "This legislation blocks continuing efforts to bring the control of the rural school system under some kind of central State body. It now behooves rural people to take advantage of the authority given for local rural school surveys, etc."

To inform farmers who are interested we are calling two meetings, at which Nobel Puffer, County Superintendent of Schools, who wishes and desires local control, will be present to discuss the purposes of this survey. Certain leaders will be invited from each district, but we wish any others at all interested to come in to these meetings. The meetings will be held at Blue Island Farm Bureau Office Thursday, January 10, 8:00 p.m.

Arlington Heights, M. E. church 2nd block N. Farm Bureau, January 11, 10 A.M.

This is your business, your tax money, and your children's schools, and your post war problem. —From "The Cooperator" Cook Co., Farm Bureau Official publication.

Sparks From Fireplace Cause Serious Fire

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Brauer on West Ave., Orland Park were to entertain some guests, so to make it a little cosier Mr. Brauer made a fire in the fireplace in the living room.

While watching it light up, he suddenly noticed the ottoman near by was on fire, evidently by a spark from the burning wood. He carried the burning ottoman outdoors and came back to the living room just in time to see the large chair ablaze, so he carried that outdoors, but as he opened the door the wind blew the flames toward him and burned his arm and hand. He was taken to the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet, where he is being treated for 3rd degree burns. He hopes to be back home in about 10 days.

The living room rug was burned in places as well as several throw rugs, with which the Brauers were trying to extinguish the flames.

New Illinois Motor Law Fully Explained

Springfield, Ill. Operation of the new Illinois motor safety responsibility law is fully explained in a booklet entitled "This Affects You", which has been mailed to every car owner in the State, Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett announced. He said it also is available to every licensed driver on application to the Secretary's Office at Springfield, as is a copy of the new law.

The booklet, he said, is being enclosed with each set of automobile license plates mailed from the Secretary's Chicago and Springfield offices. Those of the approximate 2,500,000 licensed drivers who operate cars for owners may obtain the booklet by writing for it, Mr. Barrett said.

The new Safety Financial responsibility became effective January 1, 1946. It provides for reports of every accident involving death, bodily injury or property damage of more than $50 and requires every motorist involved in such an accident to show that he is able to pay the damages for which he may be held responsible.

The booklet digest, prepared by Secretary Barrett's office, says that the motorist may show his financial responsibility by depositing security to cover the damages for such accident or by proving that he was covered by insurance or proper bond. If he does not show he can pay the damages, his right to drive and his car registration certificate are suspended.

The suspension, the digest states shall remain in effect until "one year shall have elapsed following the accident and satisfactory evidence filed showing no action for damages arising out of the accident has been instituted, or until the motorist has settled or paid the claims against him, or until he has been found not guilty, whichever occurs first."

Administration of the "accident responsibility" provision of the law will be divided between the State Department of Public Works and Buildings and the Secretary of State's new safety responsibility Division. The Public Works Department will receive the accident reports and determine the amount of security to be put up. The Secretary's office will receive the security and enforce suspension provisions.

Orland Resident Figures In Serious Auto Accident

Last Saturday night while on her way home from Chicago, Mrs. Ralph Jorgensen of Orland Park and a friend Mrs. M. Henderson met with a serious accident. They were going south on Western Ave. and nearing 119th St. the car started to skid on the icy pavement. Also skidding on the icy pavement, a car coming from the south crashed into the Jorgensen car on the drivers side. The impact was so terrific that the bumper of the other car, driven by a Mr. Anderson of Chicago, was lodged in the Jorgensen car after they were separated.

The Jorgensen car is a total wreck but the Anderson car can be repaired. All three parties involved in the accident were taken to St. Francis hospital in Blue Island, where they were treated for injuries. Mrs. Jorgensen suffered a fractured rib and double pelvic fracture as well as several scratches and bruises and may have to stay in the hospital for at least three months.

Mrs. Henderson suffered lacerations above the eye which had to have several stitches, a black eye, swollen jaw and sprained ankle, but is alright and has been released from the hospital.

Mr. Anderson suffered cuts, bruises, and injury to his leg and had to have several stitches, but he has also been released from the hospital.

She called her daughter Patsy to notify the State Police Dept. in Blue Island, and in the meantime told Mr. Ben Hyink, police officer for Palos Park, to take notice while he went past that road, which he did and stayed there until Sgt. James McKay of the State Dept. arrived. They found the body of Andre P. Lombardi, 34, of 10116 Racine Ave., a salesman for Arthur S. LaPine and Co., a chemical supply house at 121 W. Hubbard St. still at the steering wheel. He suffered a broken neck which proved fatal.

The car evidently had skidded over the 15 foot embankment during the night of Sunday as he had been dead for some time when found.

FINDING MEN FOR FEDERAL JOBS

WASHINGTON.—Few people realize it but President Truman spends a lot of time these days trying to persuade people to take important federal appointments.

An illustration was the tussle he had with astute 40-year-old Wilson Wyatt, mayor of Louisville, Ky., just appointed federal housing czar.

Wyatt was first offered just about every job in the book. Postmaster General Hannegan tried to get him to serve on the important civil aeronautics board, also to accept the job Jim McGranery wants to resign as assistant to the attorney general, one of the key spots in the justice department.

The civil aeronautics board job really tempted Wyatt, and he asked for a few days to think it over. Next day he got a phone call.

TRUMAN PLEADS.

"This is the President calling," said a voice at the other end of the phone.

"Mr. President, I've been thinking," Wyatt said, "and I'm afraid I'm going to have to turn down that civil aeronautics job."

"That's swell," replied the President. "I have a more important job for you. Please come back here right away."

Next day, Wyatt appeared at the White House, where Truman told him about the tough job of coordinating housing.

"I consider this housing situation the most important problem confronting the country today," explained the President. "If we don't solve this one, we'll really be in trouble in a year and a half."

"But, Mr. President," said Wyatt. "I'm afraid I can't afford a federal job. I want to go back home and practice law. I need the money."

"I know you want to go back to your law practice," Truman said. "I know you want to make some money. But I don't like being President either. However, I feel I have to do it, so I'm doing it."

Then, staring at Wyatt sharply, he said, "How can I do a good job if fellows like you aren't willing to come up here and help me?"

This made a deep impression on Wyatt. Next day he called at the White House for five minutes. Walking into the executive office, he said, "Mr. President, I've come in to surrender."

Ordinarily it is the work of a cabinet officer to tender a man a job. But now Truman finds he has to phone men personally and beg them to work for the government. The other day, Truman, who resents criticism of his numerous Missouri appointments, told one visitor:

"People complain about all these Jackson county (Kansas City) appointments. But whenever I try to appoint someone else, they are too busy making money. At least the Jackson county boys are willing to take the jobs."

NOTE—Actually most top federal appointees can get jobs paying twice as much outside the government. Wyatt received only $5,000 a year as mayor of Louisville, could be making $50,000 a year practicing law.

IKE'S FIRST SENATE SESSION.

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower went over big at his first meeting as chief of staff with members of the senate military affairs committee. It was an off-the-record affair, for which the senators went across the Potomac to Eisenhower's office in the Pentagon building for luncheon.

Sitting over coffee and French brandy which he had just brought back, Eisenhower spoke frankly about Soviet Russia and other matters, including co-operation with congress in running the army. Discussing his experiences as the chief U. S. representative on the Allied control commission in Germany he declared:

"If the American people had a chance to study the Russians at close range, and vice versa, I am certain there would be a fine mutual understanding and respect between the two peoples. I rubbed elbows with Marshal Zhukov and others and have a high regard for them. We enjoyed splendid co-operation. I was always able to get along with them."

"What most people don't realize is that the Russians are a good deal like us. They enjoy life like we Americans, are full of fun and have a fine sense of humor."

The general said he held no fears about future amicable relations between our own country and Soviet Russia. There will have to be some give-and-take in our relations, he said, but eventually things will work out well.

Regarding his own relations with congress, Eisenhower declared:

"This is a people's army and I intend to run it like one, along democratic lines and in close accord with congress. I am especially anxious to get along with the military affairs committees of both houses."

A PEOPLE OPPRESSED

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 1:8-14; 2:23-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—And He said, Certainly I will be with thee.—Exodus 3:12.

God never forgets His people. We can be assured of that even though at times we must wait for His coming to bring us deliverance.

The history of Israel repeatedly demonstrates the faithfulness of God; hence the lessons of this next quarter concerning them will be a source of real blessing to all who need and seek God's help.

The family of Jacob—or, as the Bible calls them, the children of Israel—prospered in Egypt particularly as long as Joseph and the rulers who remembered him were alive. But they soon learned one of life's bitter lessons, namely, that:

I. Prosperity Is Not Always a Blessing (1:8-11).

The Hebrews were a peaceful, law-abiding people. They were God's chosen people, and as He blessed them they prospered, and thus innocently they brought upon themselves the hatred of the suspicious Egyptians.

Prosperity is never an unmixed blessing. We as a nation know that to be true. Not only does it lead to a certain softening of the sinews, but all too often it results in a weakening of the moral fiber, which makes man easy prey to the attack of the enemy of our souls.

We have just passed through a great war which has demonstrated to the world that in a time of crisis America can be strong, but now that it is over we are ready to fight one another to gain advantage. Many who have profited by war are not content to have less gold in peacetime, and so the old delusion, the love of riches, is about to ruin many lives.

It should be said that the Egyptians had reason, humanly speaking, to fear this great nation which was growing up in their midst. The new rulers did not know Joseph and had forgotten the spirit in which he had brought his family into the land. The leaders of the Egyptians therefore made plans which appealed to their brilliant leaders as politic and wise. But they reckoned without God, and the burdens and afflictions they placed on the Israelites only served to bring further blessing.

So Israel learned a lesson which our present sorry world can profit by, that:

II. Persecution Is Not Always a Burden (vv. 12-14).

The people of Israel did not appreciate it, but the bitterness of their bondage was a blessing in disguise.

1. It Kept Them Separate as a People. Affliction often serves to keep God's people separated from the world. It is doing so today.

2. It Disciplined Them and Prepared Them for the Hardships of Their Wilderness Journey. We, too, do well to remember that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," and that if we are properly "exercised" thereby, our sorrows may yield rich fruit in our lives.

3. It Threw Them Back upon God. Many are the saints of God who have found that the fiery trial, the burden so hard to understand, or some affliction of body, has caused them to bring their burdens to the Lord. We have traveled far on the road of faith when we have reached the place where we learn that "man's extremity is God's opportunity."

They had only one place to turn. They were hemmed in on every side, but, as ever, they found that no man can close the way up. They called on their God.

III. Prayer Always Brings Deliverance (2:23-25).

Does God really know when His people suffer? Does He really care? Yes, He does. "They cried," and "God heard" and "remembered." That's all we need to know. The groaning of His people had already stirred God's gracious and tender heart. But He waited to hear their cry before He answered. Such is the law of prayer. May we not forget it. Far too often we turn to everyone and everything else, and finally, in desperation, to God. Why not turn to him first?

Does God hear and answer prayer? Yes, but remember that real prayer is the cry of faith coming from the heart of an obedient child. God may answer other prayers, but He always answers the prayer of faith.

His answer may not be in accord with our opinion of what it should be, for His wisdom is infinite. He knows better than we what the answer should be. Let us trust the Judge of all the earth to do right (Gen. 18:25).

A world thrown into unspeakable fear by the development of the atomic bomb is now recognizing that the only hope for the future is a spiritual revival. Many who scoffed at the idea of prayer to God are ready now to hear the witness of a church that really knows how to pray and to bring deliverance from the hand of God.

A Couple of Famous Duels That Did Not Come Off!

As is generally known, when a man is challenged to a duel, he has the choice of weapons. When Gen. Israel Putnam, of Revolutionary war fame, was challenged, he chose an open barrel of gunpowder as the weapon—with a lighted candle set on top. The last to leave would win! That settled that.

Another duel that never came off resulted from Otto von Bismarck's challenge to a famous German scientist. For weapons, the scholar selected two sausages, one infected with deadly bacteria. Bismarck was to eat one, and the scientist the other. The Iron Chancellor decided not to insist on a duel after all!

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WHO FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake and his wife, Arab, found evidence of a spy ring working out of her boarding house. Andy had searched Jones' home and found additional evidence, which he had turned over to the FBI. Arab told the girls that the evidence was in Andy's home. That night she and Andy went to the house, sorted out the evidence and waited. Renee was captured by them as she climbed in the window. Arab escaped from the cellar but was captured as she was leaving the yard. Renee was hit by a bullet fired by Jones into the cellar. In order to save Andy, she cut a small flesh wound over his heart and had him play dead. Jones broke into the cellar, believing Andy dead, left with Renee.

CHAPTER XII

I left the house, ran down the road, and found the car still tucked away safely in the field. I headed it back toward Washington. Colonel Parker's house was about four miles away, near Fort Myer. He could be counted on to act on my story first and read up on the Manual of Courts-Martial second. On the way I checked the time and found that it was only a little after midnight. It seemed as though it should be hours later. I tried not to think about Arab very often, because that thought seemed to start my head aching again. She would be safe for a time, I was sure. I couldn't help her by worrying myself sick.

Colonel Parker came to the door of his house yawning and wrestling with the cord of a bathrobe. He peered at me, and snapped, "Been painting the town red, Blake? You got some on yourself."

"Sorry, sir. I'm afraid it's blood."

"Yours?"

"No, sir."

"You look as if you've been out campaigning for a separate Air Force. What happened?"

"It's that house on Q Street business, Colonel. They've got the North African invasion spotted and they grabbed my wife and—"

A big hand reached out, yanked me inside. "Keep your voice down!" he said. "My gosh, is it really North Africa?"

"Colonel, they put together a lot of loose talk. Look." I handed him the scraps of paper on which Arab and I had made our notes.

He glanced at them. Muscles squirmed along his jaw. "Come in and sit down," he said. "I'll get on the phone. This is plenty to go on."

We went into the living room and I watched Colonel Parker go to work. He made four calls in about five minutes. He didn't mention North Africa but once or twice he used a code name which apparently identified the operation.

Finally he completed his calls, and said, "We'll have the house on Q Street and the Jones place in the bag in ten minutes. About your wife..." He cleared his throat and said gruffly, "Good kid, isn't she?"

"What chance has she, Colonel?"

"I won't feed you any sirup," he muttered. "Nobody knows what those people might do. But I think she'll be safe for a while. Two companies from Myer are going out to your place. They'll turn over every leaf around Falls Church, on the chance that the Jones crowd didn't take her along. Too bad we weren't able to get the goods on that bunch earlier."

The next few hours passed dizzily. Before I could get halfway through my report, cars began screeching up outside. The house bulged with silver leaves and eagles and even stars. I lost track of the number of times I went over the story. Questions whipped at me like tracers, and my head buzzed from trying to squeeze out new facts. Sometime during that period word came that they had drawn a blank at the two houses on Q Street. The fat man and Joey and Renee Fielding had not returned, and there was no sign of Arab.

The notes took second place in importance after that news. Maps began to cover the dining-room table until the room looked like a GHQ. They questioned me again and again on what Renee had let slip about the hangout at the shore, trying to dig up some other remarks which I might have forgotten. There were arguments about routes and speeds of cars. Finally they worked out a radius of operations based on the "five or six hours' drive" which Renee had mentioned. The radius swung in a great arc from Washington, cutting the Jersey coast up near Sandy Hook and swinging down the Maryland beaches and the long Cape Charles peninsula across Virginia and into North Carolina.

Somebody said, "With ships listening in here and here and here and here we can intercept any transmission. We get a fast fix on the sending station. We flash word to the Eastern Defense Command and the Eastern Sea Frontier. We have the coast blanketed with planes and the inshore patrol. And we blast the station."

Then for a minute there was silence and I got up nerve to speak. "Sir," I said to Colonel Parker, "do you still need me?"

A dozen pairs of eyes looked coldly at me. It was just luck that it was only a lieutenant colonel who snapped, "We may. Can't have you running off. Might be some more questions that—"

My colonel stared at the lieutenant colonel, and growled, "Suppose I handle this."

"Certainly, sir. I only meant—"

"Blake," Colonel Parker said, "have you anything in mind?"

"Yes, sir."

He took a deep breath and said, "I know you're worried about your wife, Blake. But everybody's going to do his best and I doubt if you can accomplish anything by yourself. What was in your mind?"

"Colonel, I thought I might be able to stir something up."

"Blake, if you're holding out anything..."

"No, sir. It's just that the Jones gang dropped some loose talk too. About where they went and all that. Favorite places like a restaurant and a roadhouse and a filling station that apparently sells black-market gas. Maybe the whole gang hasn't skipped. Maybe some of them are around those favorite places."

"We can look into that," somebody said. "But I don't think anything is likely to come of it."

"That's just it, sir," I said. "One sight of a jeep and any of the gang at those places would be warned. But by myself I might stir up interest."

"Bait," the four-striper said, nodding.

"Yes, sir. They know me. They might get scared and try to get rid of me."

A major said, "We could cover you with a strong detail."

"No, no," another argued. "If there's anything in it, it's a one-man job. The first thing anybody'd look for after spotting Blake would be to see if he has friends."

Nobody spoke for a few moments, and then Colonel Parker stepped in to make the decision. "Go ahead."

"Been painting the town red, Blake?"

Blake, he said. "You're on your own. Report anything you dig up. Get going." He glared around defiantly. Nobody did anything more than shrug, and so I ducked out, fast.

I hadn't picked the gas station over the restaurant and roadhouse because of any hunch or deduction. I picked it because I needed gas. But the more I thought about it the better I liked it as a place to start. If the Jones boys had a hangout five or six hours' drive away, they must buy plenty of black-market gas. In fact, the operator of the station might be more than just a ration chiseler. Even chiselers run out of gas, and the Jones boys needed a place they could count on without fail. Like tonight, for instance. The operator might be one of the gang.

"Let's have some gas," I said.

"Pump dry."

"Don't give me that stuff. Not unless you want trouble."

"Gov't business?"

"What's it to you? Fill it up."

He shuffled past me to the pump, unscrewed the cap of my gas tank, inserted the hose nozzle, unlocked his pump, and began grinding.

"Joey get off O. K.?" I asked.

His eyes flickered at me. "Joey?"

"Joey Raeder. And Jones and the rest of them. I understand they had to scram last night."

"Never heard of them."

"Cagey, huh? Well, I'll be seeing them later today, so it doesn't matter. I'm headed up that way, too."

He went on silently grinding gasoline. "Two-forty," he said finally as a trickle of gas overflowed.

I gave him a five and my ration book. He took three stamps from the book, shuffled into the house with my money. I got in the car and waited. He might come back with a gun, but that was one of the chances I had to take if I wanted to learn anything. He returned in a few minutes and handed me the change.

"Got to wipe off that gas," he said, flourishing a rag.

"Thanks."

He fiddled around the tank for over a minute. It was curious; you wouldn't have expected a guy of his type to worry about gasoline spilled on a rear fender. He finished the job and came up to my window, stuffing the rag into a pants pocket.

"I never heard of them guys," he said, and went back into his shack.

I drove off grinning. He shouldn't have insisted twice that he didn't know them. Two hundred yards from his place, out of sight around a curve, was a narrow feeder road. I swerved into it and stopped past his first bend. I got out and walked back to the gas tank. The fender had not been wiped perfectly clean. Here and there I spotted a few white grains that dissolved when I rubbed them with a wet finger. He had poured sugar into the tank while pretending to wipe the fender. I wouldn't have gone far after that sugar gummed the carburetor.

I cut across the fields and slipped up on the gas station from the rear. When I got close to the ramshackle repair shop I could hear him talking. I crept around to the front. The door was open and he was standing at a pay box with his back to me. I inched forward until I was only a right hook away from him. A shiver jerked at my skin. He was putting out my license number and a description of me. Not a flattering description, but it would have done the job. I had a vision of my car stalled two miles up U. S. 1, and a couple of friendly strangers stopping to give me the last lift I would ever get.

"O. K.," he said finally, "I'll leave you handle it."

He hung up, banged the side of the pay box, and dug a finger in the return slot. His coin didn't drop through.

"This is your unlucky day, isn't it?" I said.

He whirled, grabbing at a Stillson wrench in his belt, and I plugged him on the jaw. His head slammed back against the pay box. A coin rattled into the return slot. He melted slowly down the wall, and came to rest propped in a sitting position. I retrieved his coin. It was a nickel, indicating a call to someone not very far away. I went through his pockets and found nothing of interest. I took the gasoline pump key, however. He owed me twelve gallons of unsweetened gas.

Plenty of tire tape was handy and I used it to bind his wrists and ankles. It was too bad I'd had to hit him. It delayed things. I got a can of radiator water and sloshed it over him. He didn't budge. I knew I hadn't smacked him that hard. I worked on him for several minutes without getting a flicker, and yet his pulse was hammering like an outboard motor.

I went outside, unlocked the pump, and filled the can with gasoline. I doused him with that. His nose wriggled.

"Yeah," I said. "It was gasoline that time. Got a match, buddy?"

His eyelids snapped open. "You wouldn't do that," he whined.

"Why not? I like playing with matches."

"Go ahead, then."

I scowled. I hadn't put on a good enough act, and now he wouldn't go for the torch stuff unless I really did drop a match on him. "Where did Jones and his gang go?"

"Never heard of him."

"Never heard of anyone named Jones, huh?"

"No."

I went to the phone. "It's a dime from here to Republic 6700, isn't it?" I asked.

"What do you wanna call the War Department for?"

"Some of our boys might like to find out which side of the war you're on."

He ran a bluish tongue over his lips. "Look," he said, "you don't have to do that."

"I'm going to do it whether you talk or not. But it may be nicer for you if you talk."

"I don't know much," he mumbled. "All I know is these fellows buy gas off me. You can't shoot a man for that. Maybe I give them a little extra gas, but that's OPA grief, not army."

"You'll have to do better than that. Where do they go on these long trips they take?"

"I thought you knew."

"I want to hear from you."

His pale eyes slid around in their sockets like drops of mercury.

"They go up to Baltimore and then..." and then... now lemme think what I heard them say." He muttered to himself for a half minute and I began to get jittery. He was stalling and I couldn't figure out why. I got out a dime and lifted the phone receiver. "Now wait," he said, "I'm getting it. It's down on the Eastern Shore somewhere. They mentioned the place. It's... it's... I got to think..."

I had been a fool not to have realized that his pals might have to stop at his place for gas before starting up U. S. 1 after me. They might arrive at any minute. I swung back to the phone. My dime seemed to take ages filtering down to the bell.

"Number, please," the operator said at last.

"Republic 6700. Urgent."

Questions and Answers

Q.—Are requirements for discharge in the seabees the same as in the navy? And can a seabee be eligible for state-side duty before he has achieved enough discharge points? Mrs. W. C. G., Diggs, Va.

A.—Yes, point ratings in the seabees are the same as in other branches of the navy and they can be assigned for duty anywhere in continental U. S. at any time.

Q.—How many points are required for a discharge from the coast guard? Also does a man in the coast guard get points when he gets married? A reader, Coleridge, Neb.

A.—As of December 11, 1945, enlisted men in the coast guard are required to have 40 points to become eligible for discharge. To obtain the dependency points, he must have been married on or before August 15, 1945, and must have made a financial allotment to his wife.

Q.—My grandson was drowned in Germany after serving over two years in the army. His insurance was made out to me, as his parents are dead and I raised him from the day he was born. However, after sending in his insurance papers, the government wrote they didn't give it to grandmothers. Is there anything I can do or anyone I could write to so I can get it? Mrs. C. E. H., Hinsdale, Ill.

A.—The veterans administration informs us that legally, grandparents are not included in the range of kinship to whom insurance is payable, but in your case suggest that you legally establish your local parental, or that you have acted as parent to this boy and contact your nearest regional veterans administration office. Your local selective service board, Red Cross, or other service organization can aid you with your case.

Q.—My boy has been in the South Pacific 18 months. He is on Titian Island, U. S. Naval base hospital No. 19, Navy No. 3247. When will he be home on a furlough?—Mrs. T. H. G., Vernonia, Oregon.

A.—You do not give sufficient information concerning your son's time in service to venture an answer. You should give his age and complete service record.

Q.—Does the period a serviceman enlists for mean anything or not? Our son became 18 years of age last January 29. He enlisted in the navy for the duration of the war and six months after, now he has been sent to Japan and that surely does not look as if he is to be released soon. I am particularly concerned because he has another year in high school. Some boys in his class who entered service last year are back in school now. How can that be for one and not for all? Isn't the war over since August? Mother, Sunbury, Pa.

A.—You are right; it does not look as though your son will be home soon. The war is not over, and will not be over until so declared by the President or congress. No peace treaty has been signed. Only the surrender of Japan and Germany has been concluded. Unless he is released on points before, your son is eligible for service for six months after formal declaration of end of the war is made.

Q.—Will a veteran who draws the $20 a week until he draws ten weeks ever get a bonus? If a veteran who is 100 per cent disabled should get a light job would it cut his pension down? Mrs. M. K., Carrollton, Ga.

A.—Benefits received under the G.I. bill of rights will be deducted from any future bonus received by the veteran. This does not apply, however, to disability payments. If a 100 per cent disabled veteran is able to hold a light job, it will not cut his pension, since it does not alter his disability rating.

WORTH TALKING ABOUT

In a town in the wild and woolly West a boy reached the age of 14 without ever having spoken a word. One day he was loafing around the corral where they were branding calves, and, getting in the way of the man who was handling the branding irons, he got burned pretty badly on the seat of his pants.

As he felt the hot iron, the dumb lad shouted: "Ouch!"

There was terrific excitement, and the man who had burned him cried: "A miracle! Dummy talked!"

But the lad spoke again.

"Miracle nothing!" he said. "I just never had nothin' to say before."

Easily Fixed

Harry—Ouch! I bumped my crazy bone!

Carry—Oh, just comb your hair over it, and the bump won't show!

Clear Thinking

Jill—Bill, what makes a man give a woman a diamond ring for an engagement present?

Bill—The woman, my lass!

CHANGE THE LETTERS

Harry—Waiter, I've found a needle in my soup!

Waiter—Sorry, sir, it's just a typographical error. It should have been a noodle.

Not So Big

Mrs.—My engagement ring has always reminded me of a certain state capital.

Mr.—What state capital?

Mrs.—Little Rock.

On His Last Legs

Jill—How do you feel now?

Phil—Terrible; I feel as if I was going to die.

Jill—You can't die in here, this is the living room.

Man of Courage

Harry—Will you marry me?

Holly—You'll have to see my mother first.

Harry—I've seen your mother, and I still want to marry you.

Bad Memory

Mr. (leaving for work)—Dear, have you seen my hat? I've looked all over for it.

Mrs.—Why it's on your head!

Mr.—So it is. It's a good thing you saw it or I'd have left the house without it.

Quick Change of Mind

Wife (on phone)—Will you stop at the store on your way home? You know which one I mean?

Hubby—Yes, where they have that pretty blonde?

Wife—Never mind, I'll get it myself!

FREAK OF NATURE

Mrs. (reading from paper)—They've found an old hen with two hearts.

Mr.—I played bridge with her last night.

Thorough Reader

Jill—Mercy, are you still looking at those comics?

Bill—Sure, Jill, how else can I get my Funnies' worth?

Careful Phrasing

Bill—Can you lend me a dollar?

Phil—When I get back from town.

Phil—When are you coming back?

Phil—I'm not going.

Always Truthful

Boss—I don't quite get it, Jones. You had yesterday off for your mother-in-law's funeral, and I met her down town today, looking very healthy.

Jones—But I didn't say she was dead, sir. I just said I'd like to go to her funeral.

Said With Feeling

Ted—These modern girls certainly dress fit to kill!

Ned—Yes, and they cook the same way!

Boxes and Trays to Decorate the Home

A MEAT tin or a tomato can may be turned into a gay tea caddy with a wooden lid and a Dutch design on the front. An easy-to-follow pattern with actual-size painting patterns for 12 different designs shows you how.

Every step from lid making to antique finish is clearly described. Designs may be adapted for trays and boxes of different sizes. There is a painting guide that any amateur may use and simple recipes for mixing such subtle colors as ashes of roses, moss green and old gold.

A few of the hand-decorated articles made with this pattern are shown here. The cigarette box at the lower left is made from the smallest size fruit can; the trinket box at the right from a salmon can. The ivy design fits a flat cigarette box. The strawberry is for the top of a mayonnaise jar. There is also a Swedish design for a button box and another style of tray for the bird design.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother Howard who passed away January 2, 1937.
It is good to know that we will meet again,
Where parting is no more,
And that the one we loved so well has only gone before.
MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR HENKE, ARTHUR JR., ELAINE AND HARRY SCHLUTER

Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Meyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyer and Alfred, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meyer and family were dinner guests of Mrs. Reinhardt Meyer and sons on Sunday. Mrs. Hilding Anderson who has been ill with the flu, is improved.

Cpl. Raleigh G. Bagby returned Wednesday to Fort Knox, Ky. where he is stationed as an instructor. A group of 12 young people gathered at the Bagby home Monday evening to welcome in the new year. The evening was spent playing cards and dancing. At midnight an appropriate lunch was served. Guests were from Ivanhoe, Oak Lawn and Tinley Park.

Brown Campbell, Jr. left Wednesday for Castle Heights Military Academy at Lebanon, Tennessee, after spending a three week's Christmas vacation at home.

Mrs. D. B. Murphy has received word that her mother Mrs. Mary Chamberlain recently suffered a stroke in her home in Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jahrmak, Mrs. Schanz and Mrs. Anna Clemens motored to Salem, Wis. last Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Klitte.

The next regular meeting of the Ladies' Society of St. George's church, Tinley Park, will be held Tuesday evening, January 8, 1946 at 8 o'clock.

The program for the year will be gone over thoroughly. Many things are in store for us this year and if we are to "make our dreams come true", it will take the combined efforts of each of us. For this reason, we are asking that you make a special effort to be with us on that evening.

If you are unable to cooperate with us due to lack of transportation, please call one of your neighbors who has a car. She will be more than glad to bring you with her. One of the plans under discussion is a car-pool such as was used during the transportation emergency, and many of the ladies have expressed eagerness to act as "picker-uppers" so don't hesitate. Those of you who are regular members, won't you please plan to bring at least one new member.

The hostesses for the evening have promised something to warm us up and we know it's always very good. Remember, Tuesday evening, January 8, at 8 o'clock!

New P2V!! Your Navy is announcing a new and exciting plane, the P2V. It will be flown by a crew of seven on world patrol to Guarantee law and order. Built by Lockheed the P2V will fly our men on observation missions of more than 5,000 miles, non stop from New York to Pearl Harbor, Seattle to Tokyo, Washington to Moscow. It will perform equally well at high and low altitudes, skim the ocean or fly more than four miles high for photographic and radar mapping.

If necessary, this plane of Peace, can carry instruments of war. A Lockheed device called a Verican tail facilitates trimming of the plane in flight to allow for shifts in weight and center of gravity. The P2V can transform itself into a deadly attack bomber, using various combinations of bombs, torpedoes, rockets and depth charges, aircraft rockets, six 20 mm. cannon and twin mount 50 caliber machine guns.

The P2V reminds me of a good police man. Big and friendly and helpful if you behave, but, if you don't then watch out for his Big Stick!

Taming of Hellcat! A Gruman Hellcat Fighter Plane landed at Rubinkam Airport last Saturday. It will be based there until delivery to Thornton High School. By raising $150,000 worth of war bonds the students earned the plane for a permanent war memorial or for instruction purposes in the mechanical arts department.

The Navy pilot who flew the ship on its last air journey was on his way home for the holidays. Ferrying the Hellcat got him part way home, but for the rest of the journey he was snafud. Unable to get bus or train transportation, he started walking down the road, with a parachute under one arm, a pack under the other arm, and a lot of good wishes.

This Could Be You! Last Saturday at a local airport I spotted a gal who was going up for her first flying lesson. When I asked her why she wanted to fly, her answer seemed typical. She had heard of new opportunities opening up for those with aviation knowledge. But from the sparkle in her eyes, I believe that most of all she just wanted to get up into the sky.

Solo and student piloting is always done from the back seat of a Cub plane. She climbed in eagerly, but awkwardly because everything was so new to her. The instructor showed her how to fasten her safety belt. Then briefed her on the use of the controls. A line boy gave them a prop, they taxied to the runway, and up they went.

After half an hour, the usual time of first lessons, they were down. Then, in the flight office she learned how to fill flight data in her log book. And told how excited and surprised she was that the instructor had allowed her to work the stick and rudder for about twenty minutes of her first flight. She had managed to keep the plane straight and level and then did a few simple turns. This "eager beaver" has started on her skyroad, so let's fly "right wing" and see what happens.

Dear J. W. You asked what keeps a glider up. Answer: Thermals. Where ground is warmer than air the warmed air rises in columns called thermals. Glider pilots try to find these thermals. And then circle in them to gain altitude. National multi-place glider duration record: A flight of nine hours and seventeen minutes! World multi-place glider duration record: The latest I can find is 50 hours and 26 minutes.

Prosper Airport News: I flew into Prosper Airport last Saturday and learned "Doc" M. Higgins had just checked out for night flying in a Cub. Mary "Ma" Prosper piloted by Lee Gunderson flew to Burlington, Iowa to see her sister. And on December 26 Mr. and Mrs. Ed Prosper left for Houston, Texas for a two week's vacation.

That's all for now.

Illinois U. Library Has 2,296,517 Items

The University of Illinois library, which for many years has contained more material than any other state university library and been exceeded in America by only four other educational libraries, now contains 2,296,517 books, manuscripts, maps, pieces of music, and pamphlets.

The main and departmental libraries on the Urbana-Champaign campus contain 1,807,417 volumes, 412 manuscripts, 4,772 maps, 16,071 pieces of music, and 384,505 pamphlets, and the division of the library on the University's Chicago campus for the colleges of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy contains 74,015 volumes and 9,325 pamphlets.

Impressive growth during the past year was recorded by the addition of 62,056 volumes. Despite the wartime decrease in student enrollment, wartime activity on the campus, including Army and Navy training programs and research, kept library activity at a high level.

Outstanding recent developments were the establishment of a map department, with a specially trained staff member in charge of two collections of 25,000 to 30,000 maps, and the establishment of a specialized music library supervised by a person trained in that field.

America's first Engineering Experiment Station was established at the University of Illinois in 1903.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

HARRY: "I don't know what they'll weigh up, Judge, but my cattle and poultry sure have been gettin' fatter since I started to use distillers' dried grains in their ration."

OLD JUDGE: "You're about the tenth one who has told me that, Harry. How do you account for it?"

HARRY: "The by-product recovered from grains used by distillers is very high in vitamin and protein content. It's the best feed supplement we can get to balance the rations we feed our dairy cows, livestock and poultry. Mixed with original grain, these distillers' dried grains have a much greater feeding value than the original grain has."

OLD JUDGE: "Have any trouble getting all you need?"

HARRY: "Yes, at times, even though the distillers produced 1,200,000,000 pounds of it for the year endin' last June. I hope they'll be in a position to produce a lot more next year."

OLD JUDGE: "Then I guess nobody can tell you grain is wasted in distilling."

HARRY: "Not me, Judge... I know."

IT'S STILL STATE MEDICINE

The President has asked for what the headlines call, "A law to force insuring of the nation's health." In the debate which is sure to ensue over this proposal, proponents and opponents will be listed categorically as either liberals or reactionaries—if you are for it you are liberal; if you are against it you are a reactionary. Tens of thousands of hard working doctors who are doing their utmost to carry forward America's high medical and health standards but who oppose certain parts of the President's program, will be termed reactionaries.

And yet it is reactionary to point out that when the state compels every individual to contribute a part of his earnings toward support of a public undertaking, that undertaking must inevitably become the property of the state? When the Federal government forces a person to subscribe to a prepaid medical system sponsored by the government, is there any other name for it but "state medicine?" Likewise, is it reactionary to point out the obvious contradiction in the statement that patients will have a free choice of doctors, but doctors will not be compelled to join the program? Suppose the doctor you want is not a member of the state medical system? Indications are that many doctors will not permit themselves to be put on the government payroll unless forced to do so. In other words, in order to have your free choice you may have to pay your medical bill twice—once to the government for a doctor you don't want and again to the doctor of your actual choice.

These are some of the questions the "reactionaries" are concerned about.

MILK DETERIORATES ON THE BACK PORCH

Warning against the practice of leaving milk standing on doorsteps or porches, Professor T. S. Hamilton of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture says that just two hours' exposure to sunlight is enough to destroy 4 percent of the riboflavin in the milk. (Riboflavin is one of the B complex vitamins that you hear so much about.) Good shade, brown glass bottles or paper containers, or putting the milk into the refrigerator immediately after delivery will protect against loss of this vitamin. Hamilton also says tastes and odors in milk affect its quality as a food. Certain odors and flavors are caused by the same factors responsible for destroying vitamin C and riboflavin. Rancidity in milk is related to destruction of its Vitamin A.

RECEIVES MEDAL FOR SAVING BOY 2, FROM TRAIN

Harold R. Lisenby, district superintendent of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois, in Chicago Heights has been awarded the Britton I. Budd medal for rescuing 2 year old Frank Meekin of Glenwood from an oncoming train.

The presentation was made by Budd, president of the company, who established the award in 1926 to "stimulate interest in safety and preparedness and to provide a means of directing attention to outstanding examples of presence of mind and prompt action" during emergencies. Lisenby is the 88th person to receive the medal.

Lisenby's heroic action occurred July 30, when he stopped at the Main st. crossing of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad in Glenwood for the approaching St. Louis Zipper. He saw Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Meekin, playing on the tracks.

Lisenby leaped from his car, ran in front of the train, snatched the boy from the tracks, and carried him to safety on the other side. The boy, unhurt and unexcited, was returned by bystanders to his home nearby from which he had strayed a few minutes earlier. Later he learned the engineer thought he had been hit until the fireman signalled his safe crossing, Lisenby said.

At the time of the rescue, Lisenby resided in Joliet. He now lives in Crete.

January 31 THE LAST DAY

FOR MEN NOW IN THE ARMY TO RETAIN THEIR PRESENT GRADES BY REENLISTING ...

Men now in the Army who reenlist before February 1 will be reenlisted in their present grade. Men honorably discharged can reenlist within 20 days after discharge in the grade they held at the time of discharge, provided they reenlist before February 1, 1946.

There's a long list of attractive reenlistment privileges in the new Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945. The ability to keep your present grade is only one of them, but this privilege expires on January 31.

There are plenty of other reasons why many thousands of men have enlisted, and more thousands are enlisting every day. You'll certainly want to know all of the opportunities open to you. If you'll read them carefully, you'll know why a job in the new peacetime Regular Army is being regarded today as "The Best Job in the World."

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW ENLISTMENT PROGRAM

- Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (1-year enlistments permitted for men now in Army with 6 months' service.)
- Enlistment age from 17 to 34 years inclusive, except for men now in Army, who may reenlist at any age.
- Men reenlisting retain present grades, if they reenlist within 20 days after discharge and before February 1, 1946.
- The best pay scale, medical care, food, quarters and clothing in Army history.
- An increase in the reenlistment bonus to $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service.
- Up to 90 days' paid furlough, depending on length of service, with furlough travel paid to home and return, for men now in Army who enlist.
- A 30-day furlough every year at full pay.
- Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to reenlist.
- Option to retire at half pay for life after 20 years' service—increasing to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
- Benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.
- Family allowances for the term of enlistment for dependents of men who enlist before July 1, 1946.
- Opportunity to learn one or more of 200 skills and trades.
- Choice of branch of service and overseas theater in the Air, Ground or Service Forces on 3-year enlistments.

GETS I. C. HONOR FOR REPORTING A BROKEN RAIL

Andrew Urban Jr. of Chicago Heights recently was presented the merit award of the Illinois Central railroad in recognition of his promptness in reporting a broken length of rail in Richton Park.

Urban, vice president of the United Milk and Ice Cream company of Chicago Heights, was substituting in November for a driver on one of his company's trucks, when his truck was blocked by a passing freight train at an I. C. crossing a mile south of Sauk Trail.

Noting the jogging cars as they passed over a length of rail, Urban drove off the milk route to report the dangerous break to the station agent at Matteson. A repair crew, sent immediately, installed a new rail.

Urban said he had forgotten about the incident until he received an invitation recently to attend the meeting of the I. C. Employees Service club in Kankakee where a medal and a citation were presented. Urban is the son of the founder of the dairy company.

SUGAR SHORTAGE

In line with current sugar shortages questions are sometimes asked as to whether we can grow sugar in the United States. The answer is definitely yes. While only a limited acreage along the southern border is capable of producing sugar cane, which is a tropical plant, there are vast acreages throughout the northern half of the country where sugar beet production can be tremendously increased. Sugar beets this year will average 15 tons per acre. Assuming an average of 16 percent sugar, this would mean two 100-lb. sacks of sugar per ton, or better than 26 sacks per acre.

Sugar beets possess many advantages. In addition to producing sugar they provide a large amount of livestock feed from the by-products in the form of tops, pulp, and syrup. Sugar beets also tend to rid fields of noxious weeds while the long tap root does much toward opening the sub-soil for succeeding crops.

NO LONGER ACADEMIC

During the decade preceding the war, a remorseless political campaign was waged against the electric industry. The objective was socialism. The war diverted public attention from the campaign temporarily. But it is out in the open again. The objective is the same. An editorial in a leading financial publication, observes:

"We return, then, to the unmistakable signs that a semi-governmental war on the private power industry is to be renewed. It cannot be destructive of the general welfare. It will be essentially a fight on behalf of a collectivist economy and against a system based on private ownership and management. Such a struggle is wholly unnecessary, either for the utilization of the country's natural resources or the protection of consumers from unreasonable charges. Power generated and distributed through public ownership is not cheap power; it is made to look cheap only through the use of government capital and the huge disparity between taxation of privately owned companies and the sums paid in lieu of taxes by the publicly owned. This disparity, incidentally, is a part of the undermining of government credit which collectivism works while that credit still necessarily rests upon the earning power of private enterprise."

Whether we realize it or not, the country can no longer afford the luxury of permitting political minorities to seek destruction of basic industries that pay a large part of the cost of government. Five or ten years ago the question of tax exemption of government business enterprises was academic. Today it can mean the difference between solvency and bankruptcy of the nation.

A lot of people want to be cared for and a lot of people want the jobs of taking care of those who want to be cared for. I would rather have 100 percent of my wages and my liberty, and take care of myself, and then I would not have to take care of the fellow who is taking care of me.—Anonymous

Japan Finished As World Power

PAUL MANNING (standing before the Imperial Palace, Tokyo in above photo), widely-known commentator and magazine writer, and the only correspondent to witness and broadcast both the German and Japanese surrender ceremonies, declares in the current issue of the internationally-circulated "Sperry-scope" magazine, that the kind of peace administered by General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is a guarantee that Japan will "never again be a world power."

Manning, whose human interest broadcasts from Europe and the Pacific over a nation-wide network gained him a large following, during the last five years, predicted Tojo's suicide attempt ten days before the event.

In the "Sperry-scope" article, Manning quoted from an interview with Gen. Yoshijiro Umezo, chief of the Japanese Imperial Staff, that the Nipponese "could have continued to fight" with 9,000 Kamikaze pilots and 2,500,000 soldiers in the home islands. "I believed the General," Manning says, "when I traveled through Japan. Civilian economy had been virtually paralyzed but the Japanese army was sufficiently well equipped for at least another year of war."

Ignorance To Wisdom

By Dr. Alfred P. Haake

Editors Note: Alfred P. Haake, Ph. D. Mayor of Park Ridge, Ill., is a noted Economist, Business Consultant, Lecturer and Author.

Frankly, I am curious to know whether people really care about understanding the broad steps we take from ignorance to wisdom and how many of us deliberately take those steps even after we understand them. I would be grateful for any letters sent me thru your editor to The American Way.

We often hear it said that education only makes bigger fools of people. There is some truth in that saying, but it need not be true if people understand the real purpose of education in helping them to use the knowledge they get.

Merely to live one must have considerable knowledge. Knowing the things by which we must live, and learning them out of experience or living, is called "practical knowledge". So the man who lives in the woods needs to know a lot of facts, such as the ways of wild animals. Such knowledge is not at all necessary to the man who lives in the city.

Then there is theoretical knowledge and book knowledge. One can learn from reading a book that Alfred the Great, King of the West Saxons, was born in 849 and lived to be fifty years old. There are millions of other facts which one can get out of books that one does not need to know in order to live. So, a person can accumulate a lot of facts, or knowledge which he does not need, and which take his mind off his real job, and can make him an educated fool.

But some facts can be related to other facts and they can have significance or meaning to us. Thus, if we learn why King Alfred lived only to be fifty years old, it may help us to live longer than fifty years. When we learn to relate facts to each other, so that we can use the knowledge, then we have something more important than mere knowledge. We have understanding.

With understanding comes discernment or judgment, the ability to judge between the things which we want or do not want, things which are good or bad. That is why King Solomon prayed God, "Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart... that I may discern between good and bad..." 1 Kings 3:9.

We are told in Proverbs 4:7, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting, get understanding." But, before we can progress from understanding to wisdom, we must have a standard or criterion by which to distinguish between right and wrong, or between good and bad.

The best standard is the law of God, for that law never changes and it is supreme over all other laws made by man. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Proverbs 9:10.

The wise man is he who accepts the laws of God and adapts his life to those laws as he discovers them. In Psalms 1:3, we read that such a man, "shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringing forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

The next step is the faith that translates wisdom into action, for, having made a choice, we must have the faith and courage to act upon it. And when to these we add brotherly love and the golden rule, we approach Godliness and the highest destiny of man.

When a man ceases to be humble and is satisfied with mere knowledge acquired from education in acquainting him with mere facts, he only becomes a still greater fool.

Knowledge to understanding, to wisdom, to brotherly love is the cycle that lifts man from a mere animal to his true stature as a son of God.

Big 1946 Illinois Crop Goals Mean
Plant Food Must Be Ordered Early

If American farmers are to meet world food demands, bumper crops such as this must be produced.

CHICAGO—With the 1946 farm program calling for big crop production schedules, farmers were advised to be "early birds" in the matter of arranging for fertilizer for spring seeding operations.

"Only by this means can farmers be certain of having all the plant food they need for this year's all-important crop season," says a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Many farmers may think because the war is over they can go back to the old system of placing their orders in the spring. But those who delay or fail to take delivery in part or all of their supplies in the early months of 1946 may find themselves without adequate supplies.

"It is true that fertilizer production broke all records in the year ending June 30, 1945. But even at that, most farmers did not have all the plant food they would have liked.

"Whether the industry's production level can be maintained or increased for this year depends on whether manufacturers obtain bigger supplies of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash and whether farmers place their orders early enough.

"The tonnage must flow steadily from factory to farm during the winter months if sufficient supplies are to be available for next spring's operations. The business of producing, shipping and delivering plant food can no longer be concentrated into a last-minute rush period. If farmers will order and take their supplies early, then fertilizer manufacturers and producers of raw materials can space their operations over a time period to meet most demands."

BILLY CONN has it all figured out. Not only for himself—but also for Joe Louis. The showing made by returning ball players has cheered him up. The leading challenger for the heavyweight title takes this angle—

Billy Conn

"A number of people have wondered what sort of fighting form Joe Louis and I would be able to show by the date of our meeting next summer. A lot of them seem to think that the bout will be nothing but a pair of worn out old-timers doing the best they can. That doesn't make any sense in my book."

"You remember they thought the same way about a lot of ball players. There was Hank Greenberg, out four years, around 35 years old. But Hank was almost as good as ever, after a short workout. Then there's Red Ruffing, close to 40. And you can take up Bob Feller, Charlie Keller, and most of the others. Most of the returned veterans have stepped right back into the middle of things. And several of them were older than Joe Louis, much older than I am."

"Both Louis and I have at least two advantages over most of the ball players—Greenberg, anyway. We've been doing a lot of boxing. I've had something like 350 exhibitions to handle. That's more work than I'd have gotten if I had stayed at home. Louis has had just as much. We've both had enough ring work to keep pretty well sharpened. I mean not to get rusty."

Will Trim to 182 Pounds

"That's one edge. Now here's another—as a rule the ball players returning from service had only a short while to get back in championship shape. Louis and I will have until June. Three months is about all the training anybody needs for a fight. I expect to work my weight from 191 down to 182 pounds. I wouldn't want to go below that. I certainly won't lose any of my speed at 182. That's eight pounds heavier than I was in our first fight, where I was a little too much on the light side."

"I'd also like to say that I don't figure I'm meeting any old, worn-out fellow in Joe Louis. After all he is three years younger than Hank Greenberg and nine years younger than Red Ruffing, and no one is picking on either that I've heard about."

There are still one or two rather important factors that Conn must consider. He is younger than Louis and he is faster than Louis. But Conn must also know that on the day or night they meet, Louis will be in the best possible physical shape he can reach.

What about Conn? Billy has always had a leaning in the general direction of the primrose trail. And no such trail ever leads to any top, barring a few exceptions. Conn is young and headstrong, a fellow who likes a good time. Who doesn't? But no one is going to beat even an aging Joe Louis liking a good time.

Joe Louis at 31 is far from being an old man. He is a trifle over the hill, but not so far over. He has always been a great fighter, and he will be pretty close to being a great fighter the night he meets Conn, or any one else, with the blue chips down.

Billy is a fellow you like, but he has always been irresponsible and hard to direct. He has supreme confidence in himself. He had too much confidence in himself the night he met Louis. For one example, after the 12th round of that fight he wasn't looking for a mere victory, he was looking for a knockout.

Peril of Over-Confidence

What Conn's many supporters are afraid of is this—that Conn will take it for granted that he can whip Louis in their next meeting, without working too hard to reach this difficult goal. If that happens Conn won't have a chance. After all, he can't punch with Louis, either with the right or left hand.

It might surprise Billy to know how many experts rate Louis the better boxer, granting that Conn has more speed. Taking no credit from Conn, Louis was verging on the side of staleness when they met before. It is my belief that the Bomber will be even harder to beat when they meet again.

Conn has never been any too keen about the grind of training. Few ring men are. But this time Pittsburgh Billy will need all he can get—especially road work—and the type of training needed to bring back or to increase his speed. This doesn't mean that the likable challenger will have to spend all his time until next June on the job.

It does mean, however, that he should get started along the right road and gradually bring himself to the day he actually moves to his training camp for the final spin. Summer isn't so far away.

Pinned in Auto, Old Man Waits 14 Days for Death

Motorist's Diary Tells of Last Tragic Days of Lost Hope.

GOLD BEACH, ORE.—A diary, written in close detail, telling of days of suffering, hope and final resignation to approaching death, is all that remained to tell of a 78-year-old motorist's last tragic days on earth, says the United Press.

Written on the back of a worn highway map while he was hopelessly pinned behind the wheel of his partly demolished car, the diary related how Earl Stilson, Gold Beach, had yearned for rescue, but later calmly awaited death—only 100 feet from the busy Oregon-California coast highway.

Mrs. Earl Stilson, his wife, released the contents of Stilson's diary, written while he was suffering from a fractured pelvis, broken leg and internal injuries.

State police said they had stopped looking for Stilson a few days before—only a mile and a half south of where the aged man's wrecked automobile was found.

Writing in pencil Stilson said: "Am suffering for food and drink. Why can I not be found? Not far off the road. I fell asleep. Not a bit of warning."

Next day, Stilson wrote: "All sunshine, Satan's mockery. But He (God) will not leave me here."

On Sunday evening, in shaky hand, he scrawled:

"Will write this tonight as may not be able to go through another. Can hear cars go by but seem to be hidden from them. Have used up my battery signaling with lights and horn. Cannot understand why I cannot be found. . . . I need water most of all. With it (rain) falling most of time, I can get little by any device. I can hardly move without agony."

Gives Up Hope. Despairing of the continued rain, he wrote on the following evening: "It is beginning to rain again. Why?"

Finally weakened by the cold and suffering from exposure, Stilson recorded his last day alive with a plea for life, but a final resignation to the will of God.

"Still alive. Ought to be dead. I am near today to go into His rest if it is His will."

"Water!"

He was found four days later with the diary on the car's floorboards.

Two Boys Brave Niagara To Save Dog From Death

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT.—Two young boys who lowered themselves 100 feet into the Niagara river gorge to rescue a pet dog suffered only minor injuries.

The pair, Monty Catherwood, 12, and Roy Healy Jr., 10, had used a worn clothesline to descend the sheer face of the gorge after Monty's dog had plunged over the edge while chasing a pheasant. The two boys and the dog were pulled to the top by rope several hours later when rivermen, police officers and firemen answered an alarm given by Monty's younger brother, Garry.

Monty told his rescuers: "I wasn't going to let my dog die down there. I had to do something to save him, so Roy agreed to go with me down a rope to try to save my dog. I'm sure glad he wasn't too badly hurt."

Fame as Forecaster Brings Cripple 'Legs'

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Charles Valvo, 24, walked for the first time in his life because, he says, the accuracy of his prediction that Japan would quit August 14 gave him "new hope and confidence."

Valvo was crippled in infancy by infantile paralysis and had been bedridden until recently. Last June he forecast the date of the Jap capitulation.

Newspaper articles, visits of friends and neighbors and messages congratulating him on the correct forecast gave him a general lift, he said.

One day, he reported, he simply rose from bed and walked across the room. Later he took an outdoor stroll.

Girl, 10, Gets Free Ride New York to St. Louis

ST. LOUIS.—A 10-year-old girl completed a train trip from New York to St. Louis on the strength of a penny, a stick of bubble gum and an ingratiating personality.

Patricia Barton of Flushing, Queens, turned up at the Union station and said she "never could please her teacher" and decided to go see her grandmother at Higbee, Mo.

"I got on the train at Grand Central station," she told police, "and walked behind the conductor. He didn't ask for a ticket, so I just sat down by a nice old lady who gave me a sandwich."

A WAC turned her over to the Travelers' Aid society.

Gets Shock as She Opens Refrigerator

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.—When it came time to prepare dinner, Mrs. R. P. Reagan went to the refrigerator to get a pheasant for which the whole family was waiting with anticipation. When she opened the door the bird flew out into her face. The pheasant had been revived by the cold air.

58 Elk Hunters Caught in Gale

Fight Blizzard 10 Days in Wilderness.

POMEROY, WASH.—Fifty-eight elk hunters, marooned for 10 days in the snowbound wilderness of the Blue mountains, were brought to safety by rescue parties which at times had to fight their way through a 70 mile an hour gale and snowstorm that reduced visibility to a few feet.

Hero of the ordeal was Lester Riley, Snake river cattle ranch owner who made his way back to civilization on horseback to bring help to the group which was isolated by a sudden storm that buried the hunters' automobiles and their supplies.

After struggling through snowdrifts which sometimes were as much as 40 feet deep, Riley finally reached Pomeroy almost dead from exhaustion. It took a bulldozer three days to break a path back to the marooned hunters.

There were four casualties. Mrs. Minnie Boganne of Anacostia, Wash., suffered a heart attack and was left at Clearwater ranger station. One man contracted pneumonia, another suffered a broken leg, and a third a ruptured kidney. Five pack mules fell over a cliff and were killed.

When the blizzard closed in on the mountaintop where several groups of the hunters were camping, they banded together and formed a pool of their supplies.

After the bulldozer arrived, the hunters worked all day with shovels, digging out the cars. Food was running dangerously low and had to be rationed. They finally assembled the cars in a caravan and started back toward Pomeroy with the bulldozer clearing a path.

That day the party made three miles. They slept that night huddled in the cars for warmth. Meanwhile, Governor Wallgren and Virgil Bennington, state game commissioner, had arranged with the Walla Walla air base for three army rotary snowplows, which had started from Pomeroy, attempting to clear the road. Late the following day the caravan had traveled three more miles and met the snowplows and the army rescue party.

Navy Bureau Finds New Cure for Athlete's Foot

WASHINGTON.—A new treatment for "athlete's foot" and other fungus infections was announced recently by the research division of the navy's bureau of medicine and surgery.

Known as "undecylenic powder," the new preparation has as its active ingredients undecylenic acid (2 per cent), a fatty acid found in sweat, and its zinc salt, zinc undecylenate (20 per cent), which are fixed in ordinary talc.

An ointment form of the new preparation used in more severe cases contains 5 per cent undecylenic acid and 18 per cent zinc undecylenate in a carbowax base with water, propylene glycol and triethanolamine.

The preparation was tested by Comdr. C. Shaw, medical corps, in a study involving more than 5,600 navy men at Fort Pierce, Vero beach and Melbourne, Fla.

"Athlete's foot" developed in 28 per cent of the trainees who used no prevention, and regular dusting with the new powder cut infections to 4 per cent.

Under the same conditions 15 per cent developed infection while using powder containing boric salicylic acids, long a standard preparation.

Refused Job, Boy Wrecks Trains, Damage Is $35,000

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A 16-year-old schoolboy, William Warren States, has confessed that he removed rails, wrecking two Santa Fe trains near Turner, Kans., according to Dwight Brantley, special FBI agent here.

He is being held in the Kansas City, Kans., jail in default of $3,000 bail. States said that about a month ago he applied to the railroad for employment and was rejected.

The railroad has estimated damage at approximately $35,000.

House Shortage Debunks Ancient Ghost Stories

JACKSON, TENN.—One thing accomplished by the housing shortage is the debunking of ancient ghost stories about many so-called haunted houses.

For instance, there's the house near Jackson. Strange tales were told about it, of the woman who was having the house built disappearing before it was completed.

Now the house has been completed, the cobwebs dispersed and a family is living in it. They haven't heard any screams or rattling chains, and haven't seen any ghosts.

Memos to the Editor:

The War Dept. phoned our Girl Friday regarding some unhappy letters from G.I.s in Europe. Gen. Eisenhower personally was contacted, said the caller, and "couldn't believe anyone would say or write it." . . . The letters, it appears, dealt with a "rumor" that this column allegedly published—but we never said it or broadcast it or wrote it or anything! . . . The grievance was over a report that G.I.s in the European zone "with 70 points or more" couldn't come home to the U. S. because they had criminal records or v.d. . . . Drew Pearson finally revealed that it originated in London recently over the British Broadcasting System. . . . We have since been told that Gen. Eisenhower is so informing all concerned among our troops abroad.

A news weekly recently reported that two of the eight saboteurs (who were landed by Nazi sub at Long Island and Florida) had tipped the FBI of the landings and that these two men were promised "a break" and didn't get it. . . . These two are named Dasch and Burger. . . . The military tribunal decided all eight be put to death, but J. Edgar Hoover told FDR that Dasch and Burger had helped considerably, and it was FDR who commuted their death sentences to 30 years for one and life for the other. . . . Dasch, it appears, is "almost a mental case," and Burger "still is helpful to our govt as a witness against former enemies." . . . When the war is officially declared ended by Congress they'll probably be deported to Germany.

The late Blaze, owned by the Elliott Roosevelt, continues to wield influence on air travel. Gen. Hap Arnold and his wife are flying to the Coast about New Year's when the General steps into a top job in non-military aviation. They hoped to take along (by plane) their cocker spaniel, but Mrs. Arnold was worried there'd be another newspaper controversy. She didn't worry long—every company on the West Coast offered to send a plane. . . . Ex-Cong. Maury Maverick, now in Japan, says: "Not enough news or broadcasts about the Pacific. Gen. MacArthur is the right man for holding down the Japs, and we are demobilizing in the U. S. A. too fast!"

President Truman stepped in and prevented the budget director from shaving FBI appropriations. Truman is giving the G-Men the same support they got from Roosevelt. . . . Our recent fact that J. Edgar Hoover (after 24 years' service to the U. S.) is broke, brought him several offers from big firms to take executive posts at fancy wages, but he is staying in Washington indefinitely. . . . His former special agent in charge of the Detroit office (John Bugas), who resigned to become Henry Ford's public relations chief, is said to be getting $65,000 per annum. Another report is $50,000. . . . Mr. Hoover gets $10,000. . . . At one time he got $9,000 while the Dept. of Justice press agent got 10 Gs. . . . Incidentally, the various reports on LaGuardia's salary as a commentator are said to be exaggerated. . . . The report that "$100,000 is low" does not jell with what insiders claim—that it is $50,000.

Bigtown Vignette: Reporters tell it about one of the craft who was assigned down the bay to meet a liner bringing home troops. . . . He was to particularly interview one of the heroes. . . . The reporter was armed with copy paper and pencils, but when he sat at his typewriter he couldn't do the story. . . . "I'm sorry," he told his city editor, "I can't even figure how to get two paragraphs out of it. I told him we wanted to do a nice piece about him being a hero, and this is all I could get out of him. He said: 'First we stood and shivered in the wet. Then we ran like the devil. There was a heluva noise and then I heard a nurse say: 'Drink this, please'."

The Big Parade: Wally and Noah, the cheery Beerys, looking like Waldorphanas as they waited for cabs in front of that hotel. . . . Ella Raines, the Hollywood eye-fel, crossing 51st and L'Avenue des Ameriques. . . . Walter Abel raising Cain with a Sardi's waiter. . . . Bing Crosby at the Jerome Kern memorial rehearsal as the rumor spread that Bing had suddenly passed away. . . . Hattie Carnegie, the fashionist, looking very chic in creations of her own. . . . Nancy Carroll and her former groom, producer Jack Kirkland, still the best of pals.

Broadwayites suspect the reason Rita Hayworth's marriage to Orson Welles curdled is that he stepped out of the shower one day and she forgot to shout: "Bravo!" . . . Ex-Ambassador Hurley would like the GOP presidential candidacy, but will settle for veepee. . . . Hank Greenberg may get the Ford agency in N. Y. . . . Sec'y of the Navy Forrestal has assigned several smart intimates around the nation (one is Clendenin Ryan Jr.) to form civilian lobbies to fight the army's unification plan.

Crocheted Muff and Frilled Hat Strawberry Motifs to Embroider

Strawberry Embroidery

ONE of the loveliest designs you've ever seen for embroidering on pillow case tubing, on a guest bed sheet, on guest towels or on luncheon cloths. Each strawberry is one inch in size, to be done in red silk or cotton. Leaves are 1 1/2 inches, outlined in green thread—blossoms are in white satin or outline stitch.

Muff and Hat

HERE is a gay little crocheted muff and frilled hat to delight the lass of six to twelve years. It takes 6 ounces of 4 ply wool in white, red, navy or wine color. Use bright leftover wools to embroider the heart and flower design. Try it in white for a little girl—in navy for an older child.

To obtain complete crocheting instructions for the Warm Muff and Bonnet set (Pattern No. 5817) color chart for working peasant embroidery, send 16 cents in coin, your name, address and the pattern number.

Household Hints

Squeaky floors can be made noiseless by sifting talcum powder between the boards.

Never starch linens that are to be stored, since starch tends to make the fabric crack. Wrap in blue paper to prevent yellowing.

Mattresses should be turned from top to bottom one week and side to side the next to prevent sagging.

Keep a pair of clean gloves near your supply of hosiery during the winter, and don them before putting on hose. It will save many snags caused from hands that are roughened by cold weather.

PLAY IT SAFE!

• Why take any chances on not having all your equipment in good running order next season when you can have it all fixed up now. That's our business—expert repairs on any tractor, implement or tool used in farming. We have the mechanics, the special shop equipment and a big stock of genuine IHC parts to do your work right.

The main thing is to give us a little advance notice when you can. Most of the time our shop is swamped but when we know ahead of time we can schedule your jobs and have your machines ready when you want them.

Just give us a ring. Then when you're coming in, load up your tractor or any other piece of equipment and drop it off here. You'll find our service as good as the McCormick-Deering machines we sell. Our prices are reasonable. And we guarantee your satisfaction.
